Thank you for your continued support to ANA !

The following is the instructions of procedures after your arrival at Shanghai Pudong International Airport.

◆Preparation in advance

When traveling to China , you will need a “China Customs Immigration Health Declaration “ in addition to the “Green Health Code Application “. Please check the ANA website for details and be sure to prepare in advance . If you are not prepared in advance , you may not be able to travel to China or it may take some time to deplane .

◆Notes unique to Shanghai Pudong airport

In response to the requirements of Shanghai Government and Quarantine Department, passengers are required to measure temperature before boarding and will be refused to board with a fever of 37.3 ° C or above. In addition, after arriving at Shanghai Pudong Airport, passengers should measure body temperature again and take the health examination conducted by quarantine personnel. Meanwhile, due to the further strengthening of quarantine inspection, passengers must wait in the cabin or the specified quarantine area when waiting for quarantine inspection. Furthermore, please log in the “Entry / Exit Health Declaration” and submit it to the customs and quarantine office. Please make sure all information input is correct and the screenshot of “health declaration code” should be saved before arrival. All passengers entering Shanghai Pudong Airport must go into centralized quarantine and will be arranged to the designated quarantine facility after completing the entry procedures. Please be aware that passengers must afford all expenses of accommodation and food by themselves during the quarantine period. We apologize for all the inconvenience, and thank you for your understanding and cooperation.

Passengers whose destinations are Shanghai, Jiangsu, Zhejiang and Anhui may adopt new quarantine measures under specified conditions:
